

KWL and Q Chart

After you select a topic for your research, write what you know about the topic. Then list what you want to know about the topic in order to narrow or broaden the topic to determine a research question. After conducting preliminary research on your topic, note what you have learned. Finally, list possible research questions that you might pursue. Select a question and move on to gathering more information to find the answer.

What do you Know?	What do you Want to know?	What have you Learned?

Possible research questions
-----------------------------	--